celebrities don't impress me, but people with incredible taste do. i become atwitter, almost star-struck, when i'm in the presence of people with impeccable taste, and i always assume they will judge me. i know this is silly because they never do. at least, rachel didn't when i first visited her store eden & eden. this shop mixes new and vintage clothing with housewares and accessories in an effortless way. the clarity of vision here is apparent, yet it is eclectic in the very best of ways. i should learn to not be afraid of the rachels in the world and to be more afraid of the parises and lindsays.
