

tanpopo noodle shop

home-style japanese cooking

308 prince street. corner of broadway street

651.209.6527 www.tanpoporestaurant.com lunch tue - fri 11a - 2p sat noon - 2:30p dinner mon - thu 5:30 - 9p fri - sat 5:30 - 10p opened in 2000. owners: koshiki yonemura and benjamin smith

$$: all major credit cards accepted lunch. dinner. reservation accepted for parties of six or more

st. paul : downtown > e36

it was brenda of spoonriver who got me hooked on tanpopo noodle shop. when she first mentioned it, she got a girl-in-love look in her eyes and with a happy sigh, uttered, “i think it might be my favorite restaurant ever.” koshiki makes homestyle japanese food with the hand-of-an-artist touch, making it somewhat impossible not to fall in love with the whole place. adding to the appeal is that tanpopo is quietly tucked away in downtown st. paul, so it feels like an insider’s secret. i think my honeymoon stage with tanpopo may last forever.

imbibe / devour:

sencha tea

genmai tea

nabeyaki udon

saba teishoku

california rolls

spinach with sesame

green tea ice cream